Teaching and Research Fellow in Law

Further Particulars

St Catharine’s College in the University of Cambridge seeks to appoint a Teaching and Research Fellow in Law. The post will be tenable from no later than 1 September 2019 for a fixed period of four years. The post-holder will be required to teach two subjects in the Law Tripos. Particular preference may be given to candidates who are able to offer at least one of the following subjects: Civil Law I; Criminal Law; Land Law; Equity; European Union Law. Remuneration will be at point 40 on the University of Cambridge’s pay scale (currently £31,302). The successful candidate will be elected to an Official Fellowship of the College. The post will be fully pensionable.

Requirements

The successful candidate:

- will be educated to degree level;
- will be likely to have or to be very close to completing a PhD degree in a relevant field of Law;
- will have a developing bibliography of research publications such as contributions to scholarly journals or books;
- will have a commitment and demonstrable track-record in relation to keeping up-to-date with the latest thinking in the relevant field of Law by reading other academic material, attending conferences and engaging with other academics in the field;
- will have experience of or be able to demonstrate a commitment to undergraduate teaching.

Duties

The duties of the post-holder shall be as follows:

To teach eight hours per week (160 hours per year, excluding required preparation and marking) of supervisions (small-group teaching) to undergraduate students of St Catharine’s College or (pursuant to reciprocal teaching arrangements) students of other colleges. The successful candidate will be required to teach two papers in the Law Tripos. Any hours taught in excess of 160 per year will be paid at the standard supervision rate plus a 25% enhancement, and hours supervised for other colleges in the University will count towards the required stint.

To undertake research of international standing within the area of the post-holder’s specialism and to present and publish the results of that research at intervals consistent with the requirements of the national Research Excellence Framework (REF).

To act (as may be required) as a Director of Studies for students in Law in the College. Direction of Studies will normally be shared with other Law Fellows of the College. The duties of a Director of Studies are: to make teaching arrangements for all students under his/her direction, including the appointing of supervisors; to monitor and ensure the quality of teaching received by the students; to communicate and meet with all students at regular intervals to discuss their studies; to pass on to students all relevant course information received from the Faculty of Law; to organise, oversee, and conduct undergraduate admissions interviews; to provide feedback to the schools of interviewed students.
candidates; to ensure all students are entered for the appropriate University examinations; to report annually to the College’s Education Committee on the progress of students; to assist the Graduate Tutors in the admission of postgraduate students; to entertain undergraduate and postgraduate students in Law on a termly basis; to ensure that the College Library is well stocked with all of the texts, including selected secondary works, which are essential for students of all levels satisfactorily to complete their studies; to attend inter-collegiate meetings of the Directors of Studies in Law; to maintain good relations with the Faculty of Law; to keep up to date with changes in Faculty courses and policy.

To participate, if required to do so, in the College’s recruitment and admissions activities. Those activities include: encouraging high-quality candidates to apply to St Catharine’s to read Law; fielding admissions enquiries related to Law throughout the academic year; conducting and attending Open Days; producing and updating admissions information for candidates and schools; conducting undergraduate admissions interviews and participating in the inter-collegiate admissions pool.

To help organise and support the programme of Law-related enrichment events, including moots, mock exams, seminars, and study-related activities.

To undertake College administrative duties as required by the Governing Body (e.g. attending College meetings and sitting on committees).

To join other Law Fellows in participating in such alumni-orientated events as are occasionally organised by the College.

Benefits

Official Fellows of the College are entitled to seven free meals per week and to free single accommodation in College-owned rooms. For a Fellow not living in College accommodation, a room to work and teach in will be provided. Official Fellows may apply to College funds to support their research (including the purchase of books) and for the purchase of computing equipment. The post does not carry an entitlement to sabbatical leave.

The College

Founded in 1473, St Catharine’s College is situated in the historic centre of Cambridge and ten minutes’ walk from the modern Faculty of Law building on the University’s Sidgwick Site. At any given point in time, the College has approximately 25 undergraduate Law students and a smaller number of students studying for the LLM degree. The College is committed to academic excellence and success, while maintaining a relaxed and sociable atmosphere. The current Law Fellows at St Catharine’s are Professor Mark Elliott (Public Law), Professor Eilís Ferran (Company and Securities Law), Dr Rose Melikan (Legal History and Roman Law), Dr Liron Shmilovits (Private Law) and Dr Peter Turner (Equity and Commercial Law).
